Breve descrizione

The PRACT JM Chair – whose Chair Holder is Daniele Gallo – is aimed at showing to law students the functioning of the European Union (EU), in practice, from the standpoint of individuals. The Chair will delve into matters that, far from being purely theoretical, illustrate the operational dimension of EU law. Indeed, the internal effect of EU in domestic legal orders will be carefully investigated and will be at the heart of all teaching activities planned within the Chair. The main goal is enabling students to understand, in depth, the strength, beauty and originality of the EU. To this end, the Chair intends to explain in great detail to undergraduate, graduate and Ph.D. students how, when and to what extent can rights, grounded in EU law, be invoked and put into action before national and EU courts. At the core of the Chair lies the comprehension of constitutional principles that constitute the root of the EU and distinguish it from ‘pure’ international law: primacy, direct effect, indirect effect, effectiveness and effective judicial protection.
