A multitude of scholarly writings in many languages concern the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties (VCLT). Nevertheless, uncertainties and difficulties can be still identified when trying to understand whether and to what extent the VCLT is still central in international law and if it fits into the current international legal scenario. Such uncertainties and difficulties have resulted in the writing of this book. Hence, the chapters here collected aim at untangling the yarns of some open issues and at filling some gaps in order to ultimately establish whether at present the VCLT continues to have a role in international law. The main perspective is that of public international law. However, some room is reserved to problems stemming from the relationship between the VCLT and EU Law. The VCLT is also observed through the lens of private international law.

GIUSEPPE PASCALE (PhD in International and EU Law, Sapienza University of Rome) is an Associate Professor in International Law at the University of Trieste, where he teaches Public International Law, Law of International Organisations and EU Law and Policies. He has been an Assistant Professor at the University Ca' Foscari of Venice and a Visiting Scholar at the Max Planck Institute for Comparative Public Law and International Law (Heidelberg - Germany) and at the Peace Palace Library (The Hague - The Netherlands). He is the author of the monograph La tutela internazionale dei diritti dell'uomo nel continente africano, Napoli, 2017, and of several articles and book chapters in various fields of international law.

SARA TONOLO (PhD in International Law, University of Milan Statale) is a Full Professor of International Law at the University of Trieste, where she teaches Public International Law and Private International Law. Sara Tonolo research interests currently focus on private international law and human rights, i.e. the assessment of the compatibility of national rules with fundamental rights. She has widely published on this topic: Le unioni civili nel diritto internazionale privato, Milano, 2007; Il principio di uguaglianza nei conflitti di leggi e di giurisdizioni, Milano, 2011; The Protection of Persons with Disabilities in Private International Law, in Cuadernos de derecho transnacional, 2013; Islamic Symbols in Europe: the European Court of Human Rights and the European Institutions, in Stato, Chiese e pluralismo confessionale, 2014.

Cultura giuridica e scambi internazionali
Legal Culture and International Flows

La Collana ‘Cultura giuridica e scambi internazionali’ nasce dall’iniziativa di un gruppo di internazionalisti, desiderosi non tanto e non solo di colmare una lacuna nel panorama editoriale italiano, ma piuttosto di dare vita ad uno strumento in grado di cogliere e valorizzare l’incidenza sempre maggiore del diritto degli scambi internazionali sulla struttura dell’ordinamento internazionale nel suo complesso così come degli ordinamenti interni, senza trascurarne l’interazione con il diritto dell’Unione europea. In questo senso, la Collana si compone di due anime. Per un verso, lo sguardo è rivolto al diritto del commercio internazionale inteso in senso ampio, e cioè comprensivo della sua duplice dimensione privatistica (ad es. contrattualistica internazionale) e pubblicistica (ad es. protezione degli investimenti e OMC). Per altro verso, il concetto di scambio, combinato indissolubilmente alla cultura giuridica, serve invece a porre la Collana in una prospettiva più generale. Una prospettiva nella quale lo scambio è riferito anche a principi e modelli normativi e si realizza nei rapporti verticali e orizzontali tra ordinamenti, finendo per influenzarne il funzionamento. La Collana è intesa ad accogliere monografie, manuali e opere collettanee.

The Book Series 'Legal Culture and International Flows' mainly originates from the necessity to give account of the increasing weight that the law of international trade exercises on the overall structure of the international legal order, as well as on domestic legal systems and EU law. Due to its peculiar cross-cutting approach, the Series fills in a gap in the editorial landscape by focusing on two main areas of interest. On the one hand, it is aimed at analysing the concept of international trades, comprehensive of both its private (e.g. international contracts) and public (e.g. investment protection and WTO) dimensions. On the other hand, the Series delves into the concept of "legal flows" in its broadest meaning, i.e. as a reference to the circulation of principles and normative schemes between legal systems. From this angle, the concept is essential for giving account of the cross-fertilization taking place between the areas of interest of the Series. The Series is intended to include monographs, textbooks, and edited volumes.
