Breve descrizione

The Jean Monnet Module "Cultural Diversity and Human Rights Law" (CultHum) focuses on the international and European legal framework on cultural diversity and the protection of fundamental human rights. Special attention is devoted to harmful traditional practices, such as genital mutilations, forced and early marriages, discriminatory practices against women, extreme dietary and sanitary practices, infant begging. Integral part of the Project is the course "Cultural Diversity and Human Rights Law" taught by Prof. Angelica Bonfanti at the University of Milan. The Jean Monnet Module includes seminars, workshops and one international conference. The activities involve academics, NGOs and lawyers.
