Breve descrizione

The EU-Media Freedom JM Module aims to enhance awareness of EU initiatives concerning media freedom, underscoring the crucial role of free and diverse media in shaping democracy, upholding human rights, and maintaining the rule of law. The objective is twofold: to provide education for students and professionals directly engaged in implementing and reinforcing EU policies in this realm, such as media professionals and lawyers; and to disseminate knowledge about EU actions to a broad audience, including scholars not exclusively engaged in EU studies and civil society organizations contributing to democratic discourse. Utilizing an interdisciplinary approach, facilitated by the diversity of the teaching team, and incorporating both direct-contact activities and distance-learning formats, the proposed JM Module will feature seminars and lectures, designed for both students engaged in EU studies and those unfamiliar with it. Additionally, there are plans to develop an online training program for professionals and a dedicated podcast addressing media sector challenges and the European Union's responses.
